

COLORADO TECHNOLOGY LAW JOURNAL

Formerly the Journal on Telecommunications and High Technology Law

VOLUME 12, ISSUE 2

The 6th Annual Privacy Conference: The New Frontiers of Privacy Harms

sponsored by

The Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship

Reexamining Privacy Values

Dragnet Nation: A Quest for Privacy, Security, and Freedom in a World of Relentless Surveillance—
Chapter I: Hacked by Julia Angwin

Nothing to Fear or Nowhere to Hide: Competing Visions of the NSA's 215 Program by Susan Freiwald

The Value of Modest Privacy Protections in a Hyper Social World by Woodrow Hartzog

A Practicing Privacy Lawyer's Perspective on Use Analysis as a Way to Measure and Mitigate Harm
by Christopher Wolf

Quantifying Harm Structures

Privacy Harm Exceptionalism by Ryan Calo

Big Boss is Watching: Circumstances Under Which Employees Waive the Attorney-Client Privilege By Using E-Mail at Work by Janna Fischer

A New Harm Matrix for Cybersecurity Surveillance by Omer Tene

Risk-Based Regulation of Clinical Health Data Analytics by Deven McGraw & Alice Leiter

Student Notes

A Study on the Role of Spectrum Usage Rights Within Disputes by Michelle Hersh

Comcast v. Netflix: Why the FCC Should Redefine Multi-Channel Video Programming Distributors to Include Over-the-Top Video Providers by Maggie Macdonald

"I'll Have a Latte, Scone, and Your Online Data, Please" by Steve Martyn

Should Copyright Laws Be Able to Keep Up with Online Piracy? by Stephanie Minnock